There was a special delivery today for a 103-year old woman who had been living for the past week without air conditioning. As temperatures have soared to the century mark this week, Anne Smalls has been struggling with the oppressive heat and humidity. However, that is no longer a problem as Project Cool Breeze has provided the woman with a brand new air conditioner.

"Thank the lord because you know it's awful hot in here," rejoiced Smalls.

Project Cool Breeze is in its 9th year of existence, providing the elderly and low income with free air conditioners and fans.

"We are literally saving lives. We went inside Ms. Small's home and it's extremely hot. That's why we need people to send in the donations b/c we have a lot of these situations," said Charleston City councilman Wendell Gilliard.

If you are in need of an air conditioner or a fan contact the city of Charleston at 720-1987.

If you would like to make a monetary donation, make checks payable to:

City of Charleston Project Cool Breeze
